FORTY HORSES OWNED BY FARMERS
 LOST IN FIRE — BARN OWNED
 BY COOK & FOSTER — LOSS
 ESTIMATED AT $10,000

The delivery barn of Cook & Foster of I vine, was completely destroyed by fire last Friday night, the total damage being estimated at $10,000. The greatest loss falls upon farmers from Schuler, who coming to town had stabled their horses in the barn for the night. Forty horses were killed and their harness destroyed, none of which was covered by insurance. The fire, which was of unknown origin, started about 7 o'clock and driven by a high wind from the south threatened to spread to nearby buildings. An extra barn on the east side of the main building was saved owing to the direction of the wind, but the only thing that prevented the blaze obtaining hold on the buildings of the Lawrence & Thompson store, and the Pacific elevator was the fact that they had been covered with tin on the day previous. The new fire engine more than paid for itself in preventing the spread of the fire. The fire brigade gave excellent service and had the blaze under control by midnight, but stayed at the scene all night in case of further outbreak. Mr. Fohnley had one of his eyes seriously injured while assisting the firemen. The barn, which was erected this summer, was an up-to-date structure fully covered by insurance.

Resolutions to Come Up at Howell District Association

The following resolutions are to be submitted to the Bowell U.F.A. District Association, which meets November 19, 1922:

WHEREAS numbers of schools in the southern districts of this province are closed on account of financial difficulties and our children are suffering irreparable loss in consequence, and believing as we do that our first duty is to see that every school in the province is in operation, and that every school in the province every child receives an education; we, the members of Bowell U.F.A. District Association, hereby request the Provincial Government to make provision as the net session to take over the whole educational system, by financing and controlling the said system and that the financing of same be a first lien on the revenues of the province.

RE SUB LAND AGENT.

WHEREAS applications were called for the position of sub-land agent for Medicine Hat, and whereas Capt. W. H. Williams, who has the necessary qualifications, was appointed to the position, but in spite of this fact the agency is still closed; and whereas the Hon. Chas. Stewart made the statement while in Medicine Hat that this sub-agency would be opened; and whereas the amount involved is small, and convenience of such sub-agency of the greatest consideration to farmers, the members of Bowell H. C.

we, the members of Bowen C. F. A. District Association, hereby request the Minister of the Interior to carry out his pledge by opening this office immediately.

Winnifred Farmer Has House Burned

J. Sutter, a mile from Winnifred, was completely destroyed by fire. The fire, which was of unknown origin started in the granary and fanned by a high wind spread to the house. One of the fire fighters, Oliver Durand, was seriously injured when in attempting to remove clothing from the house the chimney fell on his head, rendering him unconscious. Great difficulty was experienced in rescuing him owing to the dense smoke.

THE REDCLIFF REVIEW, THURSDAY, NOV. 9, 1932.

CATTLE SITUATION.

In conversation with a representative of a large firm of cattle dealers in the United States the writer was very much impressed with the information he received. This representative expressed opinion that the cattle of Alberta had the reputation of being among the best in the world. He had just been in the northern part of the province where he purchased a train load of what he considered the best bunch of young stock he ever clapped an eye on. In discussing the cattle situation he said that one of the first things the farmers and ranchers of this province must learn is the absolute necessity of dehorning their cattle, as dehorned cattle bring from $1.00 to $1.50 a hundred more than those that are not dehorned.

Reference was also made to the number of young cattle being shipped out of this province. Although buying this class of stock himself he was of the opinion that farmers and ranchers were making a big mistake in disposing of them at the present time and under existing conditions.

This stock is being purchased here at from three to three and a half cents. The purchasers take them across the line and sell them to farmers over there for seven and eight cents. The American farmers feed them for a few weeks and then sell them as choice baby beef for thirteen and fourteen cents. It can be seen by this that the Alberta stock raisers are getting the small end of the deal under present conditions as well as depleting their herds for the future.

This enormous spread in prices between the producer and the ultimate consumer leaves no doubt as to the unfairness of existing conditions. It also shows that some effort should be made by our legislature and other organizations interested to remedy this state of affairs.

Surely it should be possible to eliminate at least one middle man by co-operation with the farmers across the line who have the necessary feed to put this young stock in shape to demand the highest market price. The question of fitting them for that market here is one which would have to be looked into since the present U.S. tariff is regulated by the weight of the animal.

Our informant says the general public across the line do not take very kindly to the present tariff as they are finding out that they are the ones who are paying the piper.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Notwithstanding the fact that we have in this country for the education and uplift of humanity, many organizations in general, the fact remains that the greatest factor in moulding the young life is the home. The example that is set before children at home, the teaching, instruction and advice given in the family circle will decide to a great extent the good or otherwise of the future of the rising generation. Good home training always means good citizenship. And yet it seems sometimes in these days of "jazz" and motor cars and in some of the larger cities sensational moving pictures, that we are drifting away from that standard. Home life is not what it used to be. Sometimes the fault is with the parents; more often, however, the young people of today seem to have slipped away from parental control. They not only do not seek the advice of a wise father or a good mother, but they reject that advice when it is offered them. That is the first step along a dangerous path. The girl who listens to the questionable counsel of others and ignores the loving warning of her mother is deliberately putting herself in the way of peril. How many such girls are there to be found today, girls not wicked or vicious in mind, merely unthinking and weak who choose the glitter of the shan rathar than the sure gold that is offered them at home? The primrose path that looks so pleasant and bright and joyous is studded with pitfalls for the weak and traps for the unwary. Mothers, most of them at least, know that their advice were more frequently taken there would not be so much sorrow and suffering—and there would be a marked falling off in the number of girls who "go wrong."

What is true of a girl's relationship to her mother is also true in connection with a boy and his father. A boy in his teens sometimes acts as though he was sorry for his ignorance. In his twenties he thinks that is away behind the times. But at thirty—the one-time all wise boy discovers that dad was a man of vision, knowledge and experience. It is then, when it is too late, that he wishes he had taken dad's advice.

ARMISTICE DAY.

Next Saturday will be the anniversary of Armistice Day. For this occasion one might write poems for these columns, in which a review of events leading up to the original armistice and conditions since then might be given. But we feel that nothing could be more to the point or more impressive than the following stanza:

"They slept, where they fell, at their duty,
And as there's a just God above,
He'll open his arms to receive them,
And bless them with infinite love.
And we who remain—must remember

We're pledged for the rest of our lives,
To care for the widows and orphans
Of these men who gave us their lives."

TALK OF P. R.

There is evidently a growing movement in all parts of Canada for some change in the manner of voting and electing representatives to all governmental bodies. Proportional representation appears to be the method most favored for bringing about the most satisfactory results.

It is claimed that under the present system a large number of the electorate are not represented in parliament, and the result of recent elections bears out this fact.

The advantage lies with the party with a majority, however small, distributed over a large number of constituencies; while the party with a majority, however large, concentrated in certain sections, can win these seats only. Moreover, in three-cornered contests, such as characterized the last federal election, the winning candidate not infrequently obtained only a minority of the total votes cast in his constituency.

Minorities whose vote and intelligence are of respectable proportions are unable to obtain representation, no matter how narrow the majority which separates them from the winning party. Under a two-party system, the Republican minority in the "solid" Democratic South or the Conservative minority in the "solid" Quebec, have, for example, no prospect of representation.

Where more than two parties elate, the adherents of the newer or smaller groups, having no chance of electing their representative, must either bargain with the stronger parties, or, as is contended, resort to "direct action" in order to realize their policies.

For instance, in a three-cornered fight in a constituency of 5,000 voters one candidate might get 1,750 votes, another set 1,700 and the third 1,650. The first would be declared elected, despite the fact that only 1750 voted for him, while 3,250 voted against him.

It is such glaring examples as these that are causing so much dissatisfaction in the present system.

Oat Hulls Dangerous To Feed Live Stock

Oat hulls contain very little nutritive material for the feeding of live stock and are exceedingly difficult to digest, points out Circular No. 11, just issued by the Seed Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. In fact, the circular goes on to say, feeds containing a high percentage of hulls have not infrequently been blamed for causing injury and even death to live stock. Happily, since the passing of the Feeding Stuffs Act in 1920, the fraudulent use of oat hulls has been gradually checked, and at present few manufacturers take the risk of using them in an unlawful manner. This is proved by a statement in the circular that the percentage of oat hulls used in samples submitted to the O'tawa feed laboratory from various centres has fallen in the past four years from 10 per cent. to 0.5 per cent. A series of examples are given of the illegal use of hulls in samples taken at random from those received in the ordinary way for microscopical examination at the Ottawa laboratory. These indicate that the practice has not been confined to any one province, but it is gratifying to be told that during the past two years much has been done to protect the public by officials of the Seed Branch charged with the enforcement of this Act.

Our Greatest Asset

The greatest asset of any country is not its accumulated gold, nor its areas of agricultural lands, nor vast mineral wealth, nor great manufacturing industries; neither is the greatest of all assets to be found in military or naval power, nor even in great universities of learning and strong, influential churches.

The greatest asset of a home is not the dwelling place no matter how fine it may be; it is not a comfortable bank account which provides a guarantee against want and assures comfort in declining years.

No, the greatest asset of a home, and of the nation which is only as strong as the homes of which it is composed, are the children. Take away the children and the home soon disappears and the nation dies.

For, if any people will deny the truth of these statements it need only witness the necessity of making answer to them, but how many thousands and millions by their daily actions practically deny their belief in these truths?

The world regards war with horror and deplores the loss of young men in the best years of their life. The taking of life is accepted by the law as the greatest of criminal offenses. Yet in this so-called Christian era, and boasted twentieth century civilization, conditions exist which result in the loss of life in their effect on the race more deplorable than war, and worse than murder, which only maims the physical body, while the conditions referred to destroy the intellect, ruin the body, and kill the soul of man.

These thoughts are engendered by reading the report of the latest United States census figures which reveal the astounding and startling fact that approximately 1,000,000 children between the ages of ten and fifteen years, out of a total of twelve million children of those ages, are engaged in work. This is child labor with a vengeance in one of the world's most highly civilized and prosperous countries, and a country which has long boasted of its great national public school system.

What does it mean to the future of the United States, and of the world, to have one out of every twelve of its children between the ages of ten and fifteen engaged in gainful occupations instead of being in school? One unsaved United States paper, which admits that statistical figures are cold, uninteresting things, seeks to present the matter in another light. It says:

"One million underprivileged children, destined to grow to be underprivileged men and women, to repeat the ranks of the half-witted, the gamblers, the incompetent and the criminal."

"One million voters less capable of exercising the great function of the ballot because of poor equipment for reasoning power and decision."

"One million dwarfed intellects to be the easy prey of prejudice, class consciousness and hatred, of underprivileged minds that will follow the crowd and the craze and the consciences."

"One million prospects for the I.W.O.M., the Bolsheviki, and the other exponents of half-baked theories of government."

"One million people whose darkened minds will inevitably pull down the standard of art, music, drama, and life in all its ramifications."

"One million little folk, at heart innocent of all these and other dire prospects for their country, with a real and just grievance against the one hundred million who permit this immeasurable folly of child labor to continue."

And this paper might have added: "One million prospective fathers and mothers of the next generation, not alone in the body but in the soul, to be the discharge of their great God-given duties and responsibilities."

Fortunately, conditions in Canada are vastly better and in these Western Provinces, compulsory attendance laws, rigidly enforced, operate to largely remove the child labor menace. Nevertheless, cases are by no means lacking where parents drive on one pretext or another to keep their children from school to do work about the farm or home. These short-sighted parents seem to think the immediate and rather petty gain of the child is of greater value than their permanent equipment for life's work and future citizenship.

Recently, in one of these Western Canadian Provinces the school attendance law was raised by one year, but only after a rather vigorous fight, while the proposal of a two-year advance in order to include all children up to 16 years was rejected.

The nearly the whole intellectual and economic life of the country would be bettered and strengthened if children were given a maximum equipment for their life's work. Our greatest asset should be encouraged and developed, not restricted and starved.

When Villages Prosper

Prosperity of the Town Has a Direct Bearing on Happiness of Farm Life

No country can really prosper unless its farmers are prosperous, said Mr. Levitan, in an address to farmers the other day, and no farmer will be happy and successful, unless the small villages and towns in which the farmers' families have access are highly prosperous. "Remember," said Mr. Levitan, "that you have an interest in building up towns and villages. Stick to your home ranch. Patronize your village butcher. Get friendly with your town banker—he's always glad to help and advise. Buy your furniture, your groceries, your implements in your nearest town. Every cent you spend in town remains in town. The value of your land, the ease with which you secure help, the happiness of your family, the likelihood of the boys staying on the farm—these all depend not on the farm so much as the nearby villages. By increasing the prosperity of the village, you make your farm more valuable and your life more pleasant."—St. Mary's Journal.

Civilization

What was once the lower class is gradually absorbing and identifying itself with the middle class. Ultimately, as social conditions improve still further, it will proceed to identify itself with the aristocracy. There will no longer be blue blood or green blood or yellow blood. The only blood that will run in our veins will be the blood of a free and competent citizen of a great democracy. We shall, in other words, have arrived at the exact position reached by Athens twenty-five hundred years ago.—London Daily Express.

France Needs Wheat

This Year's Crop is Insufficient for Annual Requirements

France's wheat crop for 1923 is more than one-fourth short of last year's production and nearly one-third under the customary annual requirements, according to statistics issued by the Ministry of Agriculture. The rye crop is also insufficient, but oats and barley are more abundant than last year.

The wheat yield is estimated at 64,000,000 quintals, as compared with 81,000,000 last year and the country's normal requirements of 94,000,000. This is due to a reduction of 600,000 acres in the area planted, the small yield per acre and bad weather.

Preliminary purchases abroad already amount to 7,500,000 quintals. These were bought in Canada and the United States at less than the prices prevailing in Paris. For the last month, France has been living on her old reserves because of the late harvest, so actually there is only seven months to cover. It is estimated, therefore, that the shortage would have been only 25,000,000 quintals and that 7,500,000 were bought abroad, there remains needed 17,000,000 quintals.

But no difficulty is expressed as the wheat export countries such as Canada are believed to have a surplus of 80,000,000 quintals above the needs of 1923, thus the average shortage is 15 per cent.

Serving One's Fellow Men

New York Lawyer Building Apartment for the Homeless.

It is easy to hear people say that there is nothing very bright in the world's skies. But the hopeful visionist will find some glow of promise—real rainbows, not moonbeams. Months ago Samuel Untermyer, distinguished New York lawyer, declared that he would work for the construction of five-story rooming tenements to house 45,000 families at a rental of 15 or 25 a room. To New Yorkers familiar with building costs, this seemed absurd. But the cities of New York are broken for fifty such apartment houses, planned to house 2,000 families, and it is predicted that the rental Mr. Untermyer proposed will not be exceeded.

The how of promise is not these new houses, but the fact that it is demonstrated that the need of the community enlists ability of the highest kind with the object, not of becoming wealthy, but of serving one's time and one's fellow men.—From the Milwaukee Journal.

India Trip Changed

London Report Says Tour Transformed Him Into "Early Middle Age"

What has the Indian tour done to the Prince of Wales?

Has it destroyed his youth? These are the questions that all London now asks. Everyone now sees the change in the Prince since his return from his adventurous tour, and the general inquiry is whether it was worth while, after all.

From a fresh-colored, smiling eager boy the Prince has turned into a man of early middle age. All of the old light-heartedness seems to have deserted him and, wherever he appears, he looks weighed down by care.

And there is a curious apprehensive watchful glance in his eye that none of his friends like. Talking to a friend, his glance is always ahead. It is not fear, but a kind of sub-conscious watchfulness. He seems like a man never released from an unending strain.

Rest—perhaps a happy marriage—may bring back the old ease and gaiety.

But at present the young Prince looks like a man who has survived a terrible ordeal.

Good Scores Made
At Rifle Range

The Thanksgiving Day shoot at the local rifle range proved most interesting, and some exceptionally good scores were made. Out of a possible 65 at 200 yards, F. Baird made 34, H. Sellheim 30, C. G. M. McEwen 32 and C. D. Scott 31. Shooting will continue each week end as long as weather will permit.

Judging from the progress made at the local range this year there is no doubt Redcliff will be in a position to enter at least one team for the provincial shoot at Calgary next season.

Bean Supper For
The Boy Scouts

Thanks to the ladies' societies of the several churches in town, the Boy Scouts are again to be entertained to a bean supper on Wednesday evening, Nov. 22nd.

The supper will be given in the basement of Gordon Memorial church and will commence promptly at six o'clock. The boys will meet at their club rooms at 5:30 and march in a body to the church.

As in the past the ladies' organizations in connection with St. Andrew's St. Mary's and Gordon Memorial will provide the supper, and it will be carried out along the lines of similar events in the past.

After the supper a general meeting of the executive and scouts will be held for the purpose of outlining the work for the coming winter.
